PATAGONIA - A BRIEF HISTORY

- During 18th & 19th century numerous colonies settled, with strong Welsh influence.
- The Rio Negro was then known as the South American Nile.
- In 1879 construction of the first irrigation canal began.
- In successive stages it stretched to form a string of agricultural colonies: General Roca, Cinco Saltos, Fernández Oro, among others. All in the province of Río Negro.
- In 1909, the first winery was established in General Roca: Humberto Canale.
- The twentieth century was an important productive period for wines until the crisis of 1980 ended the expansive cycle.
- 1999 a new viticultural hub was born in Neuquén. The oil city sought to diversify its production with wines in San Patricio del Chañar.
- The 2000s saw other areas flourish further north, such as Colonia 25 de Mayo, or further south, such as Hoyo de Epuyén and Capitán Sarmiento.

THE OLD VINEYARD IN QUESTION WAS PLANTED IN 1969 AND SHOWS CORRESPONDING CONCENTRATION ON THIS PLUMMY, SMOKY, SMOOTHLY TEXTURED RED. THE OAK NEEDS A LITTLE MORE TIME TO INTEGRATE, BUT THIS HAS GOOD FOCUS AND PALATE LENGTH.
