FASHION FOR PALE SKIN

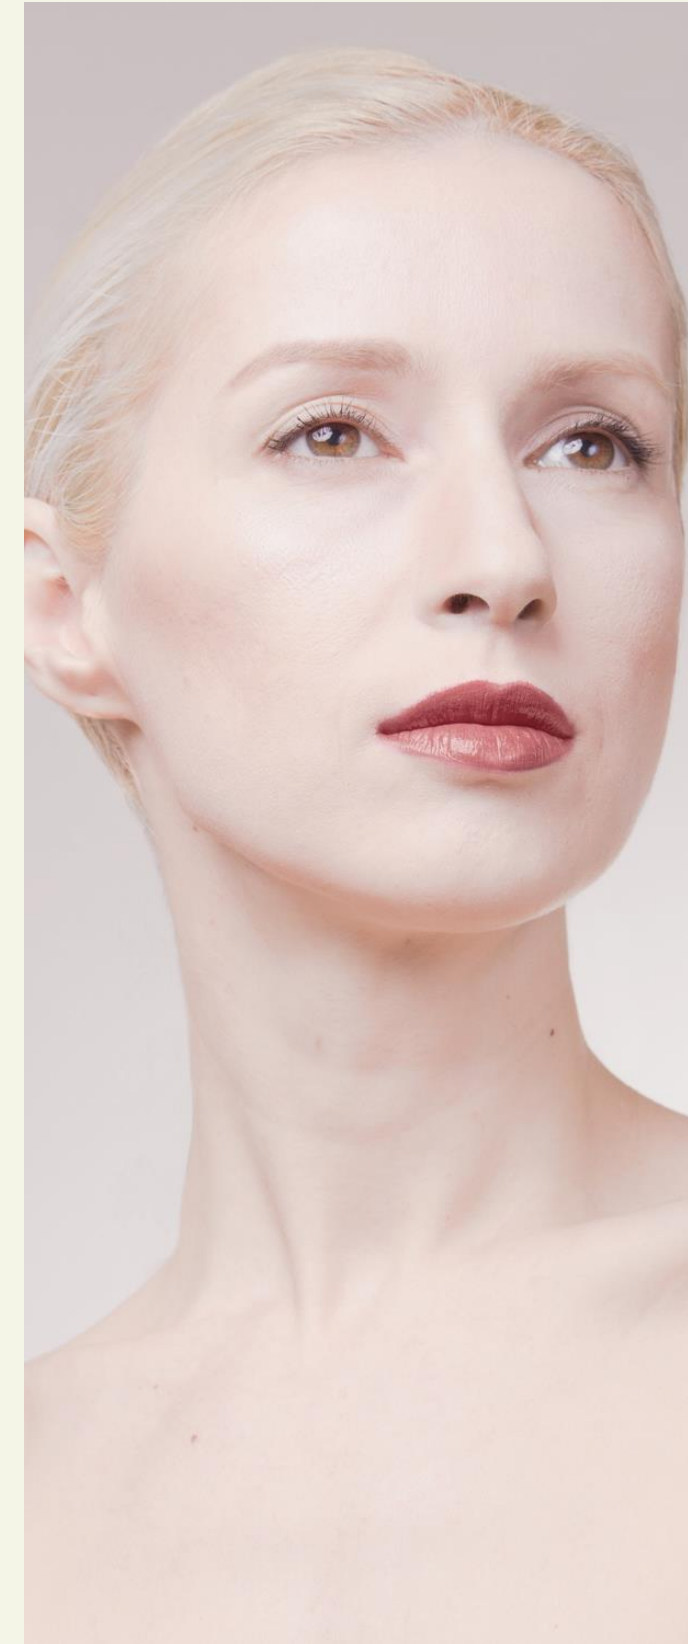

"White skin covers seven imperfections" has always been said in Japan. Despite their large market of decorative cosmetics,

Pale skin for someone can mean like a tired look, but for someone it is the standard of beauty. Previously, it was believed that pallor is a sign of aristocracy, but now Korean pop stars have introduced the fashion for bleaching and many people tend to resemble their idols.

Recently, public awareness of the harmful effects of the sun has been growing. Discoloration of the skin makes it look old and tired. In some Asian countries, the sign of aging is not wrinkles, but pigmentation.

The consumer wants to keep the light side as long as possible, with an even color, without discoloration. Provi White Care is a comprehensive treatment that lightens age spots and provides long-lasting hydration and rejuvenation.
