HISTORY

Coronilla S.A. is a family business founded in 1972 by Guillermo Wille, entrepreneur, business man, of Bolivian and German roots. The company grew fast becoming one of the leading manufacturers of traditional noodles and pasta in the local Bolivian market securing 18% of the national market.

In 1996 comes the end of a cycle for Coronilla, due to a drastic margin drop of the traditional national pasta market, caused primarily by informal competition and smuggling. The shareholders decide for a change in the company. Martha E. Wille assumes the leadership in the change, and based her work on the competitive edge of the country, and the skills of the workforce in Coronilla, innovative products are developed using as raw material quinoa, cañawa, and rice, achieving an organic, gluten free products range, that becomes an excellent nutritional option for those with gluten intolerance (celiac disease).

Coronilla's commitment with the environment, leads it to promote and sponsor the organic production of these cereals, which turns Coronilla in the first Bolivian company devoted to the industrialization of Andean cereals with organic certification, opening new venues to the country's non traditional exports. In 1997 Coronilla launches its exports, at present it exports to 20 countries throughout the world.

COMPANY PHILOSOPHY

Business for Coronilla, implies much more than mere profitability. The eco-social concept is at the base of our development, and we work incorporating values that enrich us, and which we convey to our customers, workforce, and suppliers.

Our customers receive a nutritional alternative from us that may accompany their daily meals with the confidence to know that they are safe consuming our products, that their nourishment is healthy and nutritious, and last, but not least, that they are contributing to improve the standard of living of the people that has participated in producing what they are consuming. Our customers participate in the fight against poverty and promote sustainable production chains in a country that may be very far away from where they live but where there are people that need them.

We make every effort that the transparency of our work allows to trace not only the purity of the production chain, but also social justice and responsibility. We strive to achieve that our business model be an inspiration for entrepreneurs and that they may comprehend that the generation of wealth should reach the whole value chain.

WHAT WE OFFER

Ancient farming in Bolivia has a tradition of over 2,000 years that still remains in place unchanged to this day. Crop rotation systems, variety selection, sophisticated irrigation systems, compost management, natural fertilizers, long term agricultural planning, land community planning, are all land and crop management habits deeply imbedded in Bolivia's agriculture and the Andean countries in general.

We manufacture these organic agricultural products and transform them in pastas, snacks, cereals, cookies, premixes and dehydrated instant food to serve our customer's nutritional needs anywhere in the world, being quinoa our main raw material because of its great nutritional attributes. We manufacture under our own label or private label agreements.

ALL FLAVOR.
ALL HEALTH.
